A NOVEL OF TODAY

By Helen M. Winslow

Former Editor of "The Club Woman."

HAS MADE A HIT!

A Woman for Mayor was given the LEADING REVIEW on Saturday, June 19th, day of publication, in the following newspapers:

Philadelphia North American

which says:

"It is a breezy and imaginative story—handled with notable skill."

Chicago Tribune

which says:

"An opportune, plausible love story unusually worthy of the interest it is sure to command."

Louisville Times

which says:

A genuine love story of splendid merit."

THE FOUR BIG SUMMER NOVELS

THE GOVERNORS

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

"The ever welcome Oppenheim once again. This time he tells with his customary vigor a tale of intrigues and sensations of American finance. . . . One of his most fascinating stories."—Boston Transcript.

With frontispiece by Will Grefé in color, and many other pictures. Cloth, $1.50

RED HORSE HILL

By SIDNEY McCALL

"A story of the Southland which promises in a way to do as much for the white slave of today as did 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' for the black man. Besides the problem of child labor in the mills there is a love story and romance that keeps the attention of the reader to the very end."—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Cloth, $1.50. THIRD PRINTING.

The Kingdom of Earth

By ANTHONY PARTRIDGE

"More virile than the Zenda books, and their imitators. Mr. Partridge's central idea is a novel one and he has worked it out skilfully, leading the reader on from chapter to chapter with new complication and mysteries and perils and adventures growing more and more exciting."—New York Times.

Fully illustrated by A. B. Wenzell. Cloth, $1.50. THIRD PRINTING.

A ROYAL WARD

By PERCY BREBNER

"The atmosphere of vivid realism permeating this remarkably good story gets into heart to heart touch with the reader before the first chapter is half finished."—Boston Globe.

Illustrated in color by H. C. Edwards. Cloth, $1.50.

Mental Medicine

With an Introduction by DR. L. F. BARKER of Johns Hopkins Medical School

THIS book is the substance of a course of lectures delivered by the author, a prominent clergyman of Baltimore, before the Johns Hopkins Medical School. It thus unites in speaker and audience the two professions most keenly interested in this new movement.

"Whatever is worth while in the Christian Science movement, but without its extravagances and inconsistencies, is shown in its right relations in this book. Whatever is best and wisest in the Emmanuel Movement, but without its clinics and hypnotic treatments, is clearly and strongly emphasized."

It is a book for the well as emphatically as for the sick. It aims at prevention as well as cure. Its point of view is rational psychotherapy, with the addition, when needed, of spiritual suggestion and the re-education of the whole mental outlook toward God and man.

It sets forth the essentials of a wise co-operation between physicians and ministers in their mutual care of the sick. But it shows just as clearly the methods of self-treatment along these efficacious lines of mental and spiritual control.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & CO., New York

WE can think of no higher compliment to pay Mary Roberts Rinehart than to say that in reading her new novel "The Man in Lower Ten," (Bobbs Merrill) we occasionally forget all about the plot in the genuine entertainment afforded by several of the characters. This does not mean that the plot is poor. But there is a freshness of invention and innocent jocularly throughout the story that take the reader completely into camp. Blakely the lawyer, and his friend, McKnight together make a very light-hearted work of the murder, which is further relieved by a very good comic amateur detective

NOTES IN SEASON.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY are making rapid progress in the publication of John Bassett Moore's exhaustive collection and edition of the "Works of James Buchanan." Volume seven was issued as recently as the first of June, and now volume eight appears this week. The publishers hope to have the whole edition complete in twelve volumes.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just ready Dr. William Hanna Thomson's new book, "What is Physical Life?" which promises to be an epoch-making book. The author deals with such subjects as the present status of the Darwinian theory, reproduction and heredity, the unicellular micro-organisms, the most ancient and still the largest division of the living kingdom, the metazoa, or the multicellular forms of life, the food question, internal adaptation to environment, and something as to ourselves.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish this week, apropos of the Paine centenary, a one-volume edition of Moncure D. Conway's "Life of Thomas Paine," originally published, in two volumes, in 1892, when it was welcomed by historical critics as the definitive Paine biography. They have also just ready a reprint of "The Economic Interpretation of History," containing the substance of lectures delivered at Oxford University in 1887, by James E. Thorold Rogers, M.P. They have in preparation a new novel by Myrtle Reed, entitled "Old Rose and Silver."

H. M. CALDWELL COMPANY have among their choice holiday books a series of twenty, entitled The Belgravia Series of Art Monographs, edited by Selwyn Brinton, whose "Bartolozzi and His Pupils in England" is the first volume. The second is "Color Prints of Japan, by Edward Fairbrother Strange, of the Victoria and Albert Museum, and the third, "The Illustrators of Montmartre," by Frank L. Emanuel. Some of the volumes will exhibit the art of a single city, as Venice or London; some of a single artist, as Whistler or Rodin. All are to be bound both in Persian and in velvet calf and are to be boxed.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish this week in their Library of Useful Stories "The Story of Oil," by W. S. Tower. In this book, which carries numerous illustrations, the author tells the full history of petroleum. At first there is the historical treatment, stating how the oil was known and used in ancient times and by various nations, and in what various forms. There follows the narration of the beginning of the oil industry in America and other countries, and the rapid phenomenal growth of the product through all of its various refinements. There is a chapter on the great Standard Oil Company and its growth.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly a "Life of Friedrich List," by Margaret E. Hirst, late scholar of Newnham College, Cambridge. This biography includes List's "Outlines of American Political Economy," and has an introduction by F. W. Hirst, editor of The Economist. Friedrich List has been described as the Cobbett of tariff reform. He was the founder of the German Zollverein and a strong advocate of the American system of protection. The present volume of memoirs is one of the first of the kind to come within reach of the American reader. In its preparation access has been had to an interesting collection of List's papers and manuscripts among the municipal archives at Reutlingen, List's native town, and from these papers and other sources a complete account is given of List's English and American experiences.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books issued by publishers who protect the prices of their new publications are preceded in this list by the double asterisk **, and the word net follows the price. Works of fiction (not net) of which a minimum price is protected by their publishers, are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not protected are preceded by a single asterisk *, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (2mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., var., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Baedeker, Karl. Northern France, from Belgium and the English Channel to the Loire, excluding Paris and its environs; handbook for travellers. 5th ed., with 16 maps and 55 plans. N. Y., Scribner, [imported,] 1909. 36+454 p. fold. maps, S. cl., **$2.25 net.

Bagot, R.: Anthony Cuthbert. N. Y., Brentano's, 1909. 379 p. D. cl., *$1.50 net.

The last story by the author of "Donna Diana," "Casting of the nets," etc., was issued in England last year. Anthony Cuthbert is the descendant of an ancient family. He is unmarried because of disappointment in his wish to marry an Italian lady of rank whom her father, the church and the civil authorities of Italy bestowed upon a very bad Italian. Anthony's nephew and next heir, travelling in Italy, also meets this Italian marchesa. The story is largely a psychological study of the difference of love and passion and of the civil and ecclesiastical marriage laws of Italy. The outcome of the plot is worded in the old proverb "tout comprendre est tout pardonner." The book is only intended for mature minds and is not for the "open shelf."

Barber, Edwin Atlee. The pottery and porcelain of the United States; an historical review of American ceramic art from the earliest times to the present day; to which is appended a chapter on the pottery of Mexico. 3d ed., rev. and enl., with 335 illustrations. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. c. '93-'09. 28+621 p. il. pls. O. cl., **$5 net.

The book is not merely a compilation, but is based almost entirely on personal investigation. Its main purpose is to give an account of the early potteries of historic interest, but those of the present day are not neglected. There are chapters on the process of manufacture, wares and bodies and the aboriginal pottery. Author is curator of the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art.

Bennett, Arnold. The old wives' tale: a novel. [N. Y., George H. Doran Co.,] 1909. 578 p. D. cl., *$1.50 net.

A leisurely tale told with much minutia of the small happenings that go to make up life in an English provincial town. The story begins in the sixties and follows the fortunes of the Baines family for thirty years. There are two daughters, one a quiet, home-keeping girl, who marries the head assistant in her father's shop, and develops consistently along the lines laid down by her middle-class parents. The other has a strong and rather daring spirit, and elopes with a young salesman who infatuates her. After several years the man deserts her and she has to support herself. The interest in the story centres in the careful character studies rather than in any multiplicity of incident.

Beruete y Moret, A. de. The school of Madrid. [N. Y., Scribner, imported,] 1909. 16+288 p. D. (Library of art.) cl., *$2 net.

Author is the son of Aureliano de Beruete, author of the well-known work on Velasquez. The son now studies the other artists in the School of Madrid, giving a brief account of the master, but especially directing attention to those of less fame who have contributed much to Spanish art, from its rise in 1623 until its decadence at the end of the 17th century.

Biltz, Heinrich and Wilhelm. Laboratory methods of inorganic chemistry. N. Y., John Wiley & Sons, 1909. c. 15+258 p. figs. 8°, cl., $3.

Bindloss, Harold. Thrice armed. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1909.] c. '08. 4+377 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A sea story of the Pacific coast. Relates the fight of an independent shipping company against a monopoly—a fight as bitterly contested as any commercial battle on land. This war involves races over the Pacific surges and plotting carried on in the roar of ocean tempests. The author has sailed before the mast, and he describes the sea in "the vernacular." The plot is also safe in the hands of the author of "Alton of Somasco," "By right of purchase," etc.

Blom, Ada. The biography of a New York hotel scrub. N. Y., Ada Blom, 303 E. 71st St., [1909.] 111 p. D. pap., 25 c.

The heroine, who tells her own story, was a Swedish girl who ran away from home at the age of fourteen "on account of a too severe father," who was a country school teacher. After reaching New York she spends her time chiefly in "the underworld."

Boardman, Edwin A. The small yacht: its management and handling for racing and sailing; with chapters on construction; with numerous il. from photographs. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1909. c. 23+189 p. O. cl., **$2 net.

The author won the Seawanhaka cup from the Canadians in 1905. From his large, practical experience he sets forth some of the best methods for tuning up a boat and preparing her for a race. All the rules in use by crack amateur sailors are also given. Scientific terms have been avoided, points are illustrated with photographs of small yachts taken while racing, and with valuable original plans and diagrams. The rules for extricating one's boat from and gaining advantage of a competitor are very full and useful. Gives many instantaneous photographs of racing yachts.

Browning, Rob., and Hunt, Leigh. The love poems of Robert Browning and Leigh Hunt. N. Y., Dodge Publishing Co., [1909.] c. '02. 9-137 p. D. padded silk, $1.50; leath., $2, boxed.

Buffalo. Public Library. Class-room libraries for public schools, listed by grades. 3d ed.; to which is added a list of books suggested for school reference libraries. Buffalo, N. Y., Public Library, 1909. 4+166 p. O. pap., 25 c.

The contents show careful editing. There is a graded list, for the nine grades of the public school system, then an author and title index, next a subject index, after that a list of reference books, and finally a selection of books containing stories about children and poetry about children, for the use of teachers and parents. The object of the list is to bring the public library into closer affiliation with the public schools.

patronage of His Majesty's Secretary of State for India in council. [N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,)] 1909. 48+388 p. facsim., O. cl., $4.15.

For previous vols., see American Catalog, 1905-07, v. 2, and 1908, v. 2.

Fraser, D. The short cut to India: the record of a journey along the route of the Baghdad railway; with 90 il., maps and sketches. [N. Y., Scribner, imported,] 1909. 13+381 p. fold. map, O. cl., *$5 net.

The author travelled along the route of the projected Baghdad railway, through Turkey in Asia, and gives vivid descriptions of that fascinating country, as well as much information concerning the railroad itself.

Fulton, Robert Irving, and Trueblood, T. Clarkson. Essentials of public speaking for secondary schools. Bost., Ginn, [1909.] c. 12+235 p. il. D. cl., 90 c.

First author is dean of the school of oratory in the Ohio Wesleyan University; second author is professor of oratory in the University of Michigan. Intended to supply a demand in the secondary schools for systematic instruction in the essentials of good delivery in reading and speaking; and to show the relation of intellect, feeling and gesture to the elements of effective expression in oratorical and dramatic art. Incorporates full selections as illustrative matter.

Goldberg, Reuben Lucius. Foolish questions; with due thanks to The New York Evening Mail. Bost., Small, Maynard & Co., [1909.] c. no paging, il. 16°, cl., **50 c. net.

Each "foolish question" and its impudent answer is shown in a one-page picture. Each comic picture shows clearly what the man, woman or boy is doing, heart and soul; then appears the "bromedian" questioner and asks the foolish question about what is wholly self-evident.

Goring-Thomas, A. R. Mrs. Gramercy-Park. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1909. 323 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Mrs. Gramercy-Park is a rich American widow who goes to England and tries to enter society. She is taken for one week as a "paying guest" by an aristocratic family, and meets a number of titled people. Her comments on English life and customs, given in letters to a friend in New York, are vivid and amusing. Her attempt to make a social success and marriage, with the love story of her companion, make up the tale.

Gratz, T. D. Palmistry made easy: giving the fundamental principles of the language of the hand. Phil., John C. Winston Co., [1909.] c. 59 p. figs. D. cl., **25 c. net.

The writer has avoided long discussions of the theories and the books about palmistry, and has shortened the interpretations of shapes and lines with the desire to make the study of palmistry easily understood and an attractive recreation in social gatherings.

Greene, Mrs. Mary Ellen Brown. The door where the wrong lay. Bost., C. M. Clark Publishing Co., 1909. c. 317 p. front. D. cl., $1.50.

An indignant father turns his daughter from the house because she has married against his will. At his door lie the consequences.

Grenfell, Wilfred Thomason, M.D. Adrift on an ice-pan; il. from photographs by Dr. Grenfell and others. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1909. c. 26+69 p. por. D. cl., **75 c. net.

The missionary-doctor to the Labrador fishermen tells of a night he spent on an ice pan wrapped in the skins of his dogs to keep from freezing, and drifting out to sea. In the morning he made a pole by lashing together the frozen legs of his dogs, and using his shirt as a flag signalled to the land and was rescued.

- Guerber, Hélène Adeline. Easy French prose composition; based on Contes et légendes, 1re partie. N. Y., American Book Co., [1909.] c. 91 p. D. cl., 25 c.
Well known little stories and fairy tales for translation into French. No English-French vocabulary is annexed, as experience proves that pupils learn far more French when obliged to search in an original text for the words and expressions they do not know. Pupils are to translate the lesson at sight. This affords valuable practice in pronunciation and errors of grammar can be corrected before the written translation is prepared.
- Hall, Bolton. Life, and love and peace; with introd. by the late Bishop Huntington. N. Y., Arcadia Press, 1909. c. 293 p. D. cl., $1.
Optimistic essays on such subjects as "Liberty," "False ideas of life," "The higher life," "The beauty of man," "How to attain love," "Interior and economic peace," "The triumph of life." The author acknowledges his indebtedness to Tolstoy and others in the formation of his philosophy.
- Harper, C. G. The Somerset coast. [N. Y., Scribner, imported,] 1909. 11+301 p. il. map. O. cl., $6 net.
Where the Bristol channel separates England from the southern part of Wales lies the Somerset coast. The author describes very entertainingly this part of England, which includes Clevedon, where Arthur Henry Hallam is buried; Nether Stowey, where Coleridge lived; Bridgwater, the birthplace of Admiral Blake; the "Lorna Doone" country, and many other places of literary and historic interest.
- Hughes, Ja. Laughlin. Teaching to read. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1909. c. 9+124 p. S. cl., 50 c.
The Inspector of Schools, Toronto, explains that there has been no other subject in which the results have been so unsatisfactory as in reading. He thinks the chief reason is that the race has been trained to read aloud instead of being trained to read. Reading aloud makes pupils read slowly while the true aim of reading should be to absorb the thought as fast as possible. "The man who reads only two pages in the time in which he should be able to read three pages is handicapped for life." Also indicates some ways in which an unlimited supply of most useful reading matter may be provided at the lowest possible cost.
- Hunter, Margaret L. Gracie and her pets. N. Y., Cochrane Publishing Co., 1909. 83 p. D. cl., 75 c.
The story of a little girl who lives in the country, told by her pets—the dog, the horse, the hen, etc.
- Iddings, Jos. Paxson. Igneous rocks. v. I, Their chemical and mineral composition, with a discussion of the chemical and physical principles applicable to their study; and a statement of the qualitative and quantitative systems of classifications in present use. N. Y., John Wiley & Sons, 1909. c. 11+464 p. figs. fold. pls. col. pls. 8°, cl., $5.
- Jewett, J. Howard, ["Hannah Warner," pseud.] Friends of the hunted. N. Y., Dodge Publishing Co., [1909.] c. 112 p. il. D. cl., $1.
An imaginative story of the friendship between a kindly old gentleman, his grandson and a rabbit, fox, hare, etc. The wood creatures talk with the humans and even play ball with the boy, till in the autumn the pleasant circle is rudely broken up. The book aims to teach kindness to animals and to stimulate interest in them.
- Jurgenson, Gerhard Martin. The social mirror. Brooklyn, N. Y., Otto L. Panzer, [P. O. Box 186,] 1909. c. 14+297 p. il. por. D. cl., $1.50.
Short stories on the social problems of the moment.
- Keane, C. Alexander. Modern organic chemistry; with 29 figures in the text. N. Y., Scribner, [imported,] 1909. 14+503 p. diagrs., D. (Contemporary science ser.; ed. by Havelock Ellis.) cl., $1.50 net.
- Lander, Mamie Jones, comp. Friendship through the year. N. Y., Dodge Publishing Co., [1909.] c. 124 p. D. cl., $1; leath., $1.50.
Selections from the writings of English and American writers grouped under the days of the year. Can be used as a birthday book. Quotations are printed in luxurious type and bordered in red decorative lines.
- Lester, Oliver Clarence. The integrals of mechanics. Bost., Ginn, [1909.] c. 6+67 p. figs. O. cl., 80 c.
Author is professor of physics in the University of Colorado. Aims to furnish the conclusion to courses in integral calculus, and to provide for the beginning of theoretical mechanics. These subjects are treated in great detail, all principles being fully illustrated by examples worked out in the text and my numerous problems set as exercises. The ground covered—the calculation of lengths, areas, volumes, densities, moments of inertia, etc., is common to both integral calculus and to theoretical mechanics, and the author thinks well to have the facts in one book, thus saving time and energy by avoiding unnecessary duplications in many books.
- Letts, W. M. Diana dethroned. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1909. 317 p. D. cl., $1.50.
Fancifully dedicated to the Goddess Diana by a mother who had grown to distrust emotion, Phoebe Lankester grows to be a woman, frank, naive, devoted to nature, but seemingly incapable of real love. Her engagement to the playmate of her childhood ends disastrously, and she marries a distant cousin. It is only when her baby is dead, and her husband has become a helpless despondent victim to morphia, that her heart awakens.
- Lewis, Lawrence. The advertisements of The Spectator; being a study of the literature, history and manners of Queen Anne's England as they are reflected therein, as well as an illustration of the origins of the art of advertising; with appendix of representative advertisements now for the first time reprinted, and an introductory note by G. Lyman Kittredge. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1909. c. 13+308 p. fold. facsim., O. hf. cl., $2.
Of no little significance are the quaint advertisements of The Spectator, illustrating so unconsciously the history, literature and manners of the early part of the eighteenth century. There are items concerning books, schools, amusements, including plays, operas and newly-invented "moving pictures," lost articles, houses and vehicles for sale, help wanted, lotteries, auctions, etc., representing all the art, literature, customs and fads and follies of the day.
- Littleheart, Oleta. The lure of the Indian country, and a romance of its great resort. Sulphur, Okla., A. Abbott, 1908, [1909.] c. 153 p. il. S. moccasin skin, $1; pap., 25 c.
The story of the evolution of the Indian from the wilderness stage to the time when they elected a Cherokee to the United States Senate. The book gives an interesting picture of Indian life and custom. It is written by an Indian girl and told in the form of a romance.
- Lyman, W. Denison. The Columbia River: its history, its myths, its scenery, its commerce; with 80 il. and a map. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. c. 20+409 p. O. (American waterways.) cl., **$3.50 net, boxed.
The professor of history in Whitman College, Walla Walla, Washington, has spent the greater part of his life in the Columbia Valley. He has gathered historical, descriptive and illustrated matter of rare interest, and gives full details of the exploration, development and present appearance of the great river of the Northwest, styled by Theodore Winthrop the "Achilles of rivers." As the joint possession of the United States and British Columbia, and as the grandest scenic river of the continent, the Columbia is worthy of special study.

Macfall, Haldane. Vigée Le Brun; il. with 8 reproductions in colour. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1909.] 9+11-79 p. O. (Masterpieces in colour; ed. by T. Leman Hare.) bds., *65 c. net.

An account of the life and works of the celebrated French artist, giving glimpses of the stirring times through which she lived—the time of the French Revolution.

Macvane, Edith. The black flier; with front. by Howard Chandler Christy. N. Y., Mofat, Yard & Co., 1909 c 382 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Daphne Medlycott, an English girl, is about to marry an American named Tom Sugden. All the wedding guests are assembled, when the groom discovers that the license is not made out correctly and rushes off to have it made right. He takes a short cut to the village, jumping over a hedge with disastrous results, as he wrenches his leg, making it impossible to walk. A huge black motor driven by a woman rushes by him, but at his urgent entreaty returns and takes him toward his destination. The woman apparently speaks and understands only French, and refuses to stop at the registrar's, carrying him at top speed over the border to Scotland. Then ensue many direful consequences before the tangled web is smoothed and true love rewarded.

Mallory, Herbert S. Tempered steel: a romance. N. Y., R. F. Fenno & Co., [1909.] c. 426 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Scene is laid in England at the time of Matilda and Stephen. Earl Alymar sends his friend De Beaupré to ask the hand of Lady Verian. She loves De Beaupré, but at her father's command consents to marry Lord Alymar. Odo, his cousin and secret enemy, brings to Lord Alymar's ears stories which he refuses to believe until he discovers his wife and his friend apparently preparing for flight. However, the situation is explained, and Lord Alymar finds that at last his wife loves him.

Manual (The) of statistics: Stock Exchange hand-book 1909; 31st annual issue; railroad securities, industrial securities, government securities, Stock Exchange quotations, mining, grain and provisions, cotton, money, bank and trust companies. N. Y., Manual of Statistics Co., 20 Vesey St., [1909.] 1094 p. maps, O. cl., $5.

Mason, W. L., comp. How to become a law stenographer: a compendium of legal forms, containing a complete set of legal documents accompanied with full explanations and directions for arranging on the typewriter, for stenographers and typewriter operators; an indispensable companion for every stenographer intending to take a position in a law office. N. Y., Isaac Pitman & Sons, [1909.] 165 p. O. cl., $1; hf. cl., 75 c.

Contains a large number and variety of forms, together with directions for arranging the same on the typewriter, as well as explanations of peculiar terms and expressions used by lawyers, and a carefully compiled list of Latin phrases in common use, with definitions, as found in law papers. The forms presented for study are authentic legal documents used in real legal transactions or in actual trials of cases, and are not theoretical compilations of the compiler.

Maude, Col. Frederic Natusch. The Jena campaign, 1806. N. Y., Macmillan, 1909.

24+202 p. fold. tabs., fold. maps in pocket, D. (Special campaign ser.) cl., *$1.60 net.

The battle fought out upon the plains overlooking Jena on October 14, 1806, exerted a profound influence on the progress of humanity. Here absolute monarchy and democracy, both in their highest form of embodiment, met one another under fairly equal conditions, and as a consequence all Europe now stands as a series of armed camps, and the dread of war is at the foundation of every action that takes place even in far China and Japan. The writer points out that the necessity which compels two-thirds of the male population of Europe to submit to a systematic training of the will is humanizing whole populations in marked degree and bringing about an ethical evolution that is making it possible for all to live together in spite of the gross selfishness of the human race. The descriptions of the battle are vivid, the system of maps is perfect. The author thinks Prussia failed at Jena because its leaders had mistaken the spirit of the age and shunned the responsibility of great resolutions. He points out that it is the regenerators of Prussia who are teaching the world to pursue the path of duty.

Mitchell, E. Bedinger. The shadow of the crescent. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1909.] c. 270 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

Overhearing two ruffians planning an attack on a fellow-diner in a Parisian restaurant, Ronald Lampton, an American, goes to the rescue. Immediately he is involved in plots and counterplots, which a naive young compatriot complicates by his unguarded frankness. The recent revolution in Turkey furnishes some of the incidents on which the story is based.

Moll, Albert. Hypnotism: including a study of the chief points of psycho-therapeutics and occultism; tr. from the 4th enl. [German] ed. by Arthur F. Hopkirk. N. Y., Scribner, [imported,] 1909. 16+610 p. D. cl., $1.50.

First edition appeared in 1900. See American Catalog, 1895-1900. The book is now completely revised with many important additions, bringing it into line with present-day knowledge, and dealing specially with the subjects which are receiving so much attention at the moment—occultism, suggestion and hypnotism. Index of subjects (16 p.), index of names (28 p.), bibliography (5 p.).

Nascher, Ignatz Leo, M.D. The wretches of Povertyville; a sociological study of the Bowery; sketches and il. by G. Toner. Chic., Joseph J. Lanzit, 1909. c. 298 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A thorough study of the worst section of New York with its homeless, vicious, shifting criminal classes, written between 1903 and 1906 and told earnestly and vividly. The author explains the failure of much pseudo-philanthropy, and shows the weak points in many of the present laws. A note explains that some of the resorts described have recently been altered or wiped out.

National Society for the Scientific Study of Education. The eighth yearbook of the National Society for the Scientific Study of Education; by C. Richmond Henderson. In 2 pts. pt. 1, Education with reference to sex: pathological, economic and social aspects; pt. 2, Education with reference to sex: agencies and methods; with a paper on sex instruction in high schools, by Helen C. Putnam; this yearbook will be discussed at the Chicago meetings of the National Society, Feb. 22 and 24, 1909. Chic., University of Chicago Press, 1909. 74; 89 p. O. pap., ea., *75 c. net.

Charles Richmond Henderson, Ph.D., has been professor of sociology at the University since 1892. The first part of his study is medical and economic, and proves the necessity for social control of some kind; the second part discusses carefully educational aims, co-operating agencies in education, the care of infancy, the influence of ideal interests, the principles of formal instruction in relation to sex—it necessity, difficulties and methods. Besides the paper by Dr. Helen Putnam, president of the American Academy of Medicine, Chicago, the appendix contains translations of important recent discussions of German teachers.

Ormond, Frederic. The three keys; front. by Harrison Fisher. N. Y., W. J. Watt & Co., [1909.] c. 301 p. pls. D. cl., $1.50.

Morris Lathrop, a rich young New Yorker, squanders his patrimony and resolves on suicide. Before he has a chance to commit the deed an old friend asks him to lend him a large sum to tide over a financial crisis. He promises without revealing the fact that he is absolutely penniless. Jack Millington, another friend, asks him to look after his affairs for two weeks while he is in Chicago, leaving him three keys to strong boxes in various safe deposits. Lathrop takes some securities from one of the boxes and gives them to the man to whom he promised help. Millington returns suddenly and the ensuing complications make the story, which has two love interests, interwoven with the "high finance."

O'Sheridan, Mary Grant. Gaelic folk tales; adapted from the three saga cycles of Gaelic mythology, and designed as supplementary school reading. Chic., [Mary Grant O'Sheridan, 172 Oakwood Blvd.,] 1909. c. 248 p. D. cl., 60 c.

In Ireland's dim and mythical past the country was inhabited by two races, the Firbolgs, the elder people, and the Tuath de Danann, more recent invaders. Their lives, in the old tales, ring with battle and glow with adventure. Their travels take them to Persia, Greece, Sicily and Scandinavia. The stories are told simply, for young children.

Ostwald, Wilhelm. The fundamental principles of chemistry: an introduction to all text-books of chemistry; authorized translation by Harry W. Morse. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1909. c. 12+349 p. O. cl., $2.25.

A general view of the subject, omitting specific information, but showing the connection of the various branches of chemistry and the underlying principles which unify the science.

Pemberton, Max. The show girl. Phil., John C. Winston Co., [1909.] c. '08. 9+358 p. front. in col. D. cl., $1.50.

Henry Gastenrard, a student in Paris, lost his diamond-studded cigarette case at the famous Quat-Z-Arts ball. Mimi had thrown her arms around him to get his cigarette case, but he thought it was personal admiration, and the plot of the story hinges on the friendship that grows up between her and Henry. She takes all his time, but she proves wholly delightful. The story is told largely in letters.

Perry, Ralph Barton. The moral economy. N. Y., Scribner, 1909. c. 7+16-264 p. D. cl., **$1.25 net.

Author is assistant professor of philosophy in Harvard University. The book is the preliminary sketch of a system of ethics. He studies morality directly and derives its conceptions and laws from an analysis of life. He avoids the history and criticism of doctrines, and hopes that by appealing to experience and neglecting scholastic technicalities he may connect ethical theory with every-day reflection on practical matters. He considers morality the most human and urgent of all topics of study. Under morality he includes goodness, duty, virtue, progress, culture and religion, and subdivides his work under these headings. Notes to the chapters fill 6 p.

Perugino, Pietro Vannucci. The masterpieces of Perugino, (1446-1524;) 60 reproductions of photographs from the original paintings, affording examples of the different characteristics of the artist's work. Schaad, Rev. Julius A. Only a mask?: a comparison of the teachings of the Christ and of Christian Science; also the Apostles' Creed and Christian Science paralleled. Kansas City, Mo., Rev. Julius A. Schaad, [415 W. 13th St.,] 1909. c. 43 p. nar. D. pap., 25 c.

The pamphlet is a reduction from the stenographic notes of three extemporaneous sermons given in Grace Church, Kansas City, Mo. (Protestant Episcopal), during November, 1908. The quotations from "Science and health" are taken from the edition of 1904. He claims Christian Science has no right to the term Christian: 1st, It does not teach its votaries to pray to Christianity's God; 2d, It lacks the true spirit of Christian prayer; 3d, It ignores Christ in prayer; it rejects Him as a Mediator; 4th, The Christian Science doctrine of prayer specifically contradicts the teachings of Christ as to its very nature and purpose; 5th, The logic of Christian Science is that God does not answer prayer; God is not influenced by man. The rector is confident that the name Christian is "only a mask" and that the people are beginning to see it.

Schmidt, Oscar Centennial, ed. Practical treatise on automobiles; a new, complete and practical treatise on gasoline, steam and electric vehicles; written expressly for the owner, chauffeur, machinist and garage man. Phil., American Text-Book Co., [1909.] c. 2 v., 418; 419-904 p. il. pls. fold. tab., form, diagrs., 4°, $12.

Eight maps of the heavens and one specially of the moon, taken from Prof. Franz's "De Mond." The text is in Latin and German. Several changes have been made in the new edition according to the latest calculations of the foremost observatories through the world.

Shaler, Nathaniel Southgate. Autobiography of Nathaniel Southgate Shaler; with a supplementary memoir by his wife. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1909. c. 8+481 p. pls. pors. O. cl., **$4 net.

American life at its best is represented in the history of the late Professor Shaler. He tells of his early life on an old southern estate, before the war, his experiences at Harvard, and later in the Union Army. As Professor of Geology in Harvard University, and as Dean of the Lawrence Scientific School he became the friend of the leading scientists of the time. His literary work was also of great significance, and his expeditions to Labrador and elsewhere add vigor to the narrative. Mrs. Shaler has been able to bring to completion this story of her husband's life.

Sparrow, Walter Shaw. The English house; how to judge its periods and styles. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1909. 14+348 p. pls. O. cl., **$2 net.

A general survey of English domestic architecture written non-technically, and designed to give the traveller, the student of historical and social affairs, or the prospective house-builder an intelligent idea of what the various architectural styles represent. From the Saxon era, beginning A.D. 410, the story is traced to the present day, the most recent requirements of the modern home being taken into consideration in the last chapter. Index and glossary.

Tower, Walter Sheldon. The story of oil. N. Y., Appleton, 1909. c. 11+271 p. il. D. (Lib. of useful stories.) cl., **$1 net.

Author is assistant professor of geography in the University of Pennsylvania. Gives an account from which the reader may survey the entire industry and judge its importance. Tells in non-technical terms the enormous developments in the petroleum industry during the last 50 years and points out the important part which petroleum and its products play in everyday life. Shows how no other great industry has been so completely American in its development. A chapter is given to the great Standard Oil Company and its growth. Valuable material has been drawn from the U. S. Geological Survey and other Federal Bureaus, as well as from various industrial periodicals.

Townley, Houghton. The scarlet feather; il. [in col.] by Will Grefé. N. Y., W. J. Watt & Co., [1909.] c. 365 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The miserliness of her wealthy father and her own extravagance lead Mrs. Swinton, fashionable wife of the earnest rector of an East Side church, to forge two large checks. The forgery is discovered and her son accused, at the moment when the report of his glorious death comes from the war. Mrs. Swinton does not clear his name, and induces her husband to be silent. The return of their son alive and his love affair further complicate matters, but in the end the conscience of the rector awakens and he tells the whole truth from his pulpit.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 26, 1909.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information and guidance in buying books. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of booktrade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

A SIX MONTHS' REVIEW OF THE BOOKTRADE.

THE six months which are drawing to a close as we go to press have been full of profit to the booktrade and of promise for the future. The holiday trade of the season of 1908-1909 held its own well into the new year, and the "seasonal" trade was surprisingly good. The dealers who anticipated the various anniversaries that have occurred since January 1 were in many reported instances rewarded for their enterprise beyond expectation. All of which proves that the wide-awake bookseller who starts early is bound to catch the worm, though it may at first seem to be only a lean worm. Those who have followed the talks at the recent convention of the American Booksellers' Association may possibly have learned with chagrin that the success of the bookseller in these days depends upon but very trifling things—upon the sale of many things that are not at all related to the selling of books; but inasmuch as the life of any business depends upon by-products, whether it be the sale of driftwood or in the output of an extra amount of courtesy or the accommodating, within the bounds of reason, of the chance customer in whatever manner the demand may be put, it behooves the bookseller to be on the lookout how he may increase his business—if only penny by penny.

Despite the cry of "hard times" that is heard early every year, the book auction sales for the past six months have been unusually successful. The average price has been higher than ever and the grand total greater than in any other season. For the first three months more records were made in the New York, Boston and Philadelphia auction rooms than for the same period for many years; indeed, it is estimated that up to February 1 no less than 1200 new records for rarities had been made in one auction room alone. And the auction room always is an index to the temper of bookbuyers.

The outlook for the next six months is full of hope. Many books that both here and in England were laid over at the close of 1908, either because they had been unduly delayed or because it was not deemed advisable to push them then, are to be brought to the fore during the next three months. Besides these, the publishing trade is busy turning out new material that promises to contain much of lasting merit. In the competitive field, much that is startling in the way of long sets is looming upon the horizon to keep the trade either hustling or guessing. All in all, however, the look ahead is as promising as the account of the trade from January until now has been profitable.

PUBLISHERS should note the fact that the new copyright code becomes effective on Thursday next, July 1. The Copyright Office will furnish, on application, the new blank forms, which will be found most comprehensive and convenient. The affidavit which is now required for books and periodicals is included with the general form. The notice is practically the old short form Copyright, or, Copr., with name and year. Full directions are to be found in Copyright Office circular 33A, reprinted in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for May 1, 1909.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO. TO REMOVE TO BEACON HILL.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY will in a short time remove their business from the location at No. 254 Washington Street, with which they and their predecessors, the old Boston firm of Hilliard, Gray & Co., have been identified for upwards of a century.

Charles C. Little and James Brown, from whom the present firm derives its name, succeeded Hilliard, Gray & Co. in 1837. The building which they have so long occupied, the second on the site, was erected by Harvard College in 1857. In the early forties of the nineteenth century the noted publishing firm of Phillips & Sampson, of which William

Lee was at one time a partner, occupied the second floor over Little, Brown & Company's store. The location and its immediate neighborhood gathered for a long time the bulk of the publishing and bookselling business of Boston. Nearly opposite, at the corner of School Street, was for many years the famous house of Ticknor & Fields, and a few doors south of them T. O. H. Perry Burnham had his noted antiquarian bookstore. At one time, two doors from Little, Brown & Company's, were E. P. Dutton & Co., who afterwards removed their business to New York. Other noted houses in the neighborhood were Lee & Shepard, Crosby & Nichols, A. Williams & Co., who occupied the "Old Corner," at one time Ticknor & Field's store, Gould & Lincoln, Crocker & Brewster, and Munroe & Francis. Cornhill, near by, fairly swarmed with book shops.

But time brings about many changes. Some of these houses no longer exist, and others have one by one departed from the old book centre and transferred their business to other locations, so that this vicinity is no longer distinguished, as it once was, as the book centre of Boston.

In their turn, yielding to the necessity of obtaining adequate accommodations for their large and constantly increasing publishing business, and separate offices for its various departments—a need of to-day not felt in the conduct of business some years ago—Little, Brown & Company have acquired the property at No. 34 Beacon Street, corner of Beacon and Joy Streets, a few doors from the State House, extending back on Joy Street to Joy Place, to which they expect to remove early in the autumn. Beacon Hill is already a favorite location for publishers and booksellers. A few doors from the new quarters of Little, Brown & Company are Ginn & Co., one of the largest educational publishing houses in New England, and Houghton Mifflin Co., who have for years been situated but a short distance away on Park Street. The American Unitarian Association occupies a building on Beacon Street opposite the State House. The Congregational Sunday School and Publishing Society's premises are nearby, and the American Baptist Publication Society are about to move to Ashburton Place.

In their new quarters Little, Brown & Company will have ample facilities for conducting their publishing business, together with a law sales rooms and a department for the sale of fine books at retail.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY IN PARK PLACE.

For the third time since it was organized the American News Company has changed its habitat, locating this time in the seven-story building at 11 to 15 Park Place, running north to Murray Street, which has been made over to suit the purposes of its enormous and growing business. The building has been modernized in every respect. The finish throughout is in golden oak, and each floor is plentifully supplied with light and fresh air.

The distribution of the various departments of the business will be as follows: First floor, retail periodical department; second floor, general offices of the American News Company; third floor, book department; fourth floor, manager's offices, together with those of his assistants, cashier's office, bookkeepers' office and the post-card department; fifth floor, stationery department; sixth floor, country periodical department, catalogue department and stationery stock room; seventh floor, shipping department and stationery stock room. Beneath the street level is a cellar, and beneath that a sub-cellar. The first will be occupied by the department of returned goods in connection with the periodical department, and the latter by a store-room for stationery, books, wrapping paper, etc.

It is expected that the change will be entirely made and the various departments settled in their new quarters by July 1. The work is being carried on as rapidly as circumstances will permit, certain of the departments already being in operation in the Park Place building. With this change, the carrying on of the enormous amount of routine and detail work connected with the great business done by the American News Company will be facilitated in every respect and there will be greater comfort and convenience for all employees.

The fact that the business of the company has been carried on throughout this change in location practically without interruption is a credit to those having it in charge.

The American News Company came into existence on February 1, 1864, through the union of the interests of Henry Dexter, John Hamilton, S. W. Johnson and Patrick Farrelly and Tousey & Co., at the time the greatest news distributors in the country. They established themselves as The American News Company at 119 and 121 Nassau Street—121 Nassau having formerly been Mr. Tousey's location. The first officers of the company were Sinclair Tousey, president; Henry Dexter, vice-president; S. W. Johnson, treasurer, and J. Hamilton and P. Farrelly, superintendents.

The new organization began its career with all the advantages which accrued to it from a large capital, increased facilities of business and the high personal reputation and wide experience of the gentlemen who composed it. Pioneers in the American news agency enterprise, each had fought his way up from the very beginning to the topmost round of the business which each one by his individual exertion had done so much to systematize, develop and dignify. It was a rare union of the various qualities of mind and experience necessary to the formation of a representative news agency, as has been amply proved by the harmonious working and wonderful success of their operations ever since.

Year by year the business grew and prospered despite violent opposition and virulent abuse. Steadily the enormous machine, steadily cumulating effort, every hour forged ahead, leaving success in its wake. In March, 1877, the company took possession of their handsome new building at 39-41 Chambers Street, on the site of what was once Burton's Theatre, and what was afterwards used as the United States Court building, running back to Reade Street. The building had a frontage of seventy-five feet on both streets. The Chambers street front was of Philadelphia brick, trimmed with corners of Concord granite, in Romanesque style, and was surmounted by the happy design, sculptured in heroic size, of a newsboy crying his papers, on the base of which was carved the date, 1876, the year when ground was broken for the building. This figure of the newsboy has been reproduced in duplicate and now graces the top of the new building on Park Place, which otherwise is without decoration, presenting only a plain brown stone front.

EDWARD EVERETT HALE'S BOOKS.

DR. EDWARD EVERETT HALE'S death has called attention to the number of his publishers. Ticknor & Fields and all the metamorphoses of the firm brought out his stories, and Houghton Mifflin Company published his "James Russell Lowell and His Friends" in 1899. In 1900 Little, Brown & Co. issued a ten-volume edition containing practically all of his best-known books, including his famous "The Man Without a Country" and "In His Name," "Ten Times One," "The Brick Moon," "Philip Nolan's Friends," "A New England Boyhood," "How to Do It," "Addresses and Essays on Subjects of History, Education, and Government," "Sybaris," and "How They Lived at Hampton," and "Poems and Fancies." Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company still keeps on its list the Family Flight series which he and Miss Susan Hale wrote together, and also his "Story of Massachusetts" and "Boys' Heroes." The Lend a Hand Society published many pamphlets of his, and one of his last "introductions" was written for "The First True Gentleman," published by John W. Luce & Co.

HOUSE OF SEVEN GABLES SOLD.

"THE House of the Seven Gables," at Salem, Mass., around which Nathaniel Hawthorne wove one of his best known and most characteristic tales, has been purchased by Mrs. George R. Emmerton, and will be turned into a house for settlement work.

The house was built in 1662 and originally had seven gables. In remodelling it some forty years ago most of these gables were removed and much modernized, but the places where the seven gable windows were are easily discernible to-day on the inside.

THE MCGRAW-HILL BOOK COMPANY.

THE Book Department of the McGraw Publishing Company and the Hill Publishing Company have consolidated under the corporate name of the McGraw-Hill Book Company, with offices after July 1 at 239 West Thirty-ninth Street, New York. This consolidation brings together two of the most active publishers of technical books in the country. The new company takes over the book departments of both houses with a list of about 250 titles, both industrial and college text-books, covering all lines of engineering. It will continue as well the retail, importing and jobbing business of the two houses.

The officers of the new company are: president, John A. Hill; vice-president, James H. McGraw; treasurer, Edward Caldwell, and secretary, Martin M. Foss. Mr. Hill is head of the Hill Publishing Company, which controls The American Machinist, The Engineering and Mining Journal and Power and The Engineer. Mr. McGraw is head of the McGraw Publishing Company, which issues the Electrical World, Electric Railway Journal and The Engineering Record. Mr. Caldwell has been manager of the McGraw Book Department for several years and Mr. Foss manager of the Hill Book Department.

PEARSON'S BOOK PUBLISHING SCHEME.

C. T. BRAINARD, who has been in the publishing business in New York for the last twelve years, on the first of June disposed of his interests in the publishing business of C. T. Brainard and the Harcourt Bindery, which he has been conducting at 425 Fifth Avenue for the last four or five years, to connect himself with a publishing enterprise conducted under the auspices of Pearson's Magazine.

Mr. Brainard started in the book business with the old firm of Peale & Hill, and was with them until they dissolved their business. Then he became identified with the New York World, later with the New York Times, and still later with the Mail and Express. Then he wrote advertising for the "book clubs" of the Wanamaker stores, and became identified as the advertising and sales manager for the firm of Merrill & Baker, which position he held for seven or eight years, later going into business for himself, with H. L. Chatman, of Boston, as silent partner.

It is the purpose of the Pearson Publishing Co. to establish a book department, making sets of books, one for the subscription book trade and one for the trade. They have several sets of plates now under way, the two most important of which are a complete set of Maupassant and a complete set of Flaubert. The subscription book edition of the Maupassant will be in seventeen octavo volumes, illustrated with many photogravures to the volume, as well as marginal drawings, decorative head and tail-pieces and specially-designed initial letters. The trade edition will be in ten octavo volumes, printed upon thinner paper, one photogravure to the volume, many full-page half-tones, initial letters, head and tail-pieces, etc.

The Flaubert will be made practically on the same lines as the Maupassant, with the exception that the subscription edition will be in ten volumes and the trade edition in five volumes. Both these sets of books will be on the market by the 15th of September. In each edition there will be considerable new material which has never before been translated, and instead of one translator for each edition there will be several, and there will be a number of critical and interpretive essays written by professors of romance languages in several of the largest universities.

TESTIMONIAL TO W. J. GAGE, OF TORONTO

OVER three hundred employees of W. J. Gage & Co., wholesale and manufacturing booksellers and stationers of Toronto, Canada, gathered on the afternoon of June 7 on one of the spacious floors of the company's warehouse on Eppadina Avenue to do honor to the president of the company, Mr. W. J. Gage, and to mark the rounding out of sixty-five years of successful business. A handsome engrossed address, accompanied by a special copy of the artistic booklet issued by the firm in honor of the sixty-fifth anniversary, was presented to Mr. Gage by W. P. Gundy, general manager and treasurer.

Mr. Gage, who was evidently much affected, replied as follows: "Mr. Gundy and friends—I want to thank you for this very beautiful tribute of your goodwill. I wish I could rightly put into words my appreciation—my full appreciation—of the kindness and the thoughtfulness that has led to this expression of your esteem. Like every person else I value success in business, and like the rest of you I value the goodwill and kindly regard of friends and neighbors. I want to tell you there is something else that I prize more highly than any of these things—next to the love and affection of those in my household. I prize the loyalty and affection of those I am meeting with from day to day in the close relationship of business—some of you for ten years; some twenty years; others, I am grateful to say, for the full thirty-five years. I think if I were called upon to make confession—one that I would not be ashamed of—I would say that right here I would look for some of my closest friends in life. Out in the world friends and neighbors sometimes misjudge us and put a wrong estimate on us. No mistake of this kind could occur here where for ten or twenty years we daily meet together, facing the problems and the perplexities, the work and the worry of business. Here our lives become an open book. The very secrets of our hearts are known to each other; our full measure is taken. Is it any wonder, then, that under such conditions, under such a test, your kindly regard as now expressed and your good opinion are so highly valued?"

THE HOOPER-JACKSON FIGHT.

VICE-CHANCELLOR HOWELL, in Newark, N. J., on June 17, took the papers in the Jackson-Hooper Encyclopædia Britannica suit and will digest them during his vacation. It will be several weeks before he announces his decision.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE death of Frances Boyd Calhoun this month is reported from Covington, Tenn. Mrs. Calhoun was the author of "Miss Minerva and William Green Hill," a little book published recently by Reilly & Britton, of Chicago, which has gained a considerable popularity and is now in its fourth edition.

ERNEST NISTER, of Nuremberg, Bavaria, whose fine art publications were known throughout the world, died recently at Nuremberg. Mr. Nister, who was about sixty years of age, had been in failing health for some time. His genius was recognized officially by the German Government, who created him a Knight of Labor.

J. Q. PREBLE, the founder of one of the largest manufacturing stationery concerns in this country, died on June 23, aged eighty-three. Mr. Preble was born in Maine, but came to New York City when a very young man as a salesman for a New England stationery firm. A few years later he set up in that business for himself in Beekman Street, later at 77 White Street and 54 Franklin Street. Mr. Preble retired from business twenty years ago.

ALFRED JACKSON, bookseller and stationer, died on June 2 at his home in Rochester, N. Y., where he had been in business since 1876. Mr. Jackson was born in England, May 14, 1849, and came to this country in 1873, making his home in Rochester. Three years later, in partnership with Mr. Wells, he continued the book business of D. M. Dewey. After several years Mr. Wells retired and the firm became Jackson & Burleigh. Twenty years ago Mr. Burleigh retired, and from that time until he died Mr. Jackson ran the store alone. Until seven years ago the store was in Reynolds Arcade. At that time it was moved to 14 State Street. The following resolutions were adopted by the Rochester booksellers and stationers:

"Mr. Alfred Jackson was a man of fine personal qualities and strict business integrity, devoted to his business and true to his friends. He was called upon to suffer much of pain and anguish through physical infirmity during many years of his life, and his latter days were passed in severe weakness and suffering. He never complained, however, and a cheery voice and presence was ever in evidence as he greeted his friends and business associates. We shall greatly miss him in our business and private walks, and tender to his afflicted wife and son our most heartfelt sympathy."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE, on June 14, celebrated the ninety-eighth anniversary of her birth. Fifty-nine years ago Mrs. Stowe sent into the world a work that had a far greater effect than any other on the progress and destiny of this country. James Forbes Rhodes, in his "History of the United States," says that no literary influence had as much to do with the change of sentiment which took place in the Northern States between 1850 and 1860 as "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The eminent English political economist, J. E. Cairnes, remarked in his work on the "Slave Power" that "the fugitive slave law was of doubtful benefit to the slave power; its first fruit was 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.'"

PERSONAL NOTES.

J. SINCLAIR ARMSTRONG sailed for England by the Adriatic on June 23.

B. J. ROBERT, who for seven years was chief clerk of the Atlanta Branch of the American Baptist Publication Society, eight years manager of the Dallas Branch, and for the last four years manager of the St. Louis Branch of the same concern, has resigned his position to take effect July 15. Mr. Robert has been elected and has accepted the position of superintendent and business manager of the Texas Baptist Memorial Sanitarium, a $400,000 plant nearing completion at Dallas, Tex.

F. EDWARD HAFELY, the son of Fred. Hafely, of the firm of Hills & Hafely, sailed for England on June 23 by the Adriatic. Mr. Hafely will spend six months in the offices of Hills & Co. to become thoroughly acquainted with the production of the goods handled in this country by the firm of Hills & Hafely. The best wishes of a host of his friends follow him to his new berth, which friendly feeling would have taken a more substantial form if his departure had been delayed but another twenty-four hours.

BASE BALL NOTES.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS VS. THE CENTURY CO.

THE base ball teams of G. P. Putnam's Sons and The Century Company in the afternoon of June 19 met on a field on the corner of Sherman Avenue and Hawthorne Street and played a hotly-contested game, as the following score shows:

Features of the game were Curran's great running, catch of Seidel's Texas leaguer back of third, and Resler's brilliant game in the field.

THE LITERARY DIGEST VS. M'CLURE'S.

ON Saturday last, June 19, The Literary Digest baseball team defeated McClure's Magazine by the score of 11 to 2. This was the first game of the season for The Literary Digest team. The Digest nine is ready to meet all comers in the publishing field. Address F. Herbert, in care of Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York City.

THE BOOK FAIR OUTING.

EVERY one within a hundred miles of the Palmer House in Chicago, in any direction, will no doubt sit up when he reads the bill-poster, (reprinted on page 2044 of this issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY), of the Field Day to be held on July 9. There will be all kinds of things "doing," but the principal event will be the game of ball between the East and the West. It is generally conceded that the West has the East already beaten many miles—but we mustn't anticipate—the Information Bureau, open in Room 548, Palmer House, Chicago, at 9 or 10 A.M., July 6, will attend to the rest.

A BASEBALL LEAGUE OF THE BOOKTRADE.

It is suggested that the various base ball teams in the trade in New York get together and form a Publishers' Baseball League. The men in the following houses already have clubs: Charles Scribner's Sons, Ginn & Co., Century Company, Baker & Taylor Company and Grossett & Dunlap. If a league were formed the men of other firms would be likely to form clubs and join the larger organizations. Those who are open to this suggestion are requested to communicate with Henry Giersberg, with G. P. Putnam's Sons.

Putnam's are open to play any house in the publishing trade during July, August and September on Saturday afternoons. Teams wishing to arrange for matches may address A. Born, manager of the Putnam Baseball Team, in care of G. P. Putnam's Sons, 27 W. Twenty-third Street, New York.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. announce a bibliographic work which aims to give a complete summary and description of "The First Printed Translation Into English of the Great Foreign Classics." The compilation has been done by William J. Harris, and is intended to serve as a supplement to text-books of English literature.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just brought out under the title of "Writings on American History," a bibliography, compiled by Grace Gardner Griffin, of all books and articles however brief which contain anything of value to the history of the continental United States and Canada. As to other portions of America, while the work aims to include all writings on their history published in the continental United States, Canada or Europe, it does not include what the lands to the southward have published on their own history. (16+162 p. O. cl.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE J. K. GILL Co., Portland, Ore., are issuing a series of post-cards commemorating the annual rose show given in that city.

A NEW edition of "The Spiritual Development of St. Paul," by the Rev. Dr. George Matheson, the blind preacher and theologian, is being brought out by Thomas Whitaker, Inc.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. have in preparation "A History of Germany, 1715-1815," by C. T. Atkinson, modern history lecturer at Exeter College, Oxford. It deals fully with the conflicts which rent the German states from the death of Louis XIV. and the final overthrow of Napoleon.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD have in preparation a new book by George Cary Eggleston, entitled "Irene of the Mountains." The scene of the story is Richmond immediately before and during the war between the states, but the earlier chapters describe the mountain folk and their politics. The story will be illustrated by Frank T. Merrill.

THE CENTURY Co. is making a book to be called "Stories of the Great West," consisting of Theodore Roosevelt's best work on the history of and life in the West, chapters from "Winning of the West," "Hero Tales" and "Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail." The illustrations are by Frederic Remington and other well-known artists. It will be used largely for supplemental reading in schools.

ALLEN, LANE & SCOTT, Philadelphia, have just published a volume entitled "L'Evolution de l'Arbitrage Internationale," a reprint of some articles contributed by Thomas Willing Balch to the Revue de Droit Internationale et de Legislation Comparee. The book gives an account of the gradual growth of International Arbitration from the time of the Thirty Years' War to the present day, and discusses the possibilities of its future development.

POPULAR MECHANICS, 225 Washington Street, Chicago, will publish next week the first of its series of 25-cent Industrial Handbooks, entitled "Mission Furniture, How to Make It." The book consists of directions how to make a large assortment of pieces of Mission Furniture of most approved design, the instructions being accompanied by dimensioned working drawings. In style it is like Popular Mechanics, written in plain English.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS is about to bring out a work entitled "Theodore Roosevelt: Dynamic Geographer," an essay by Frank Buffington Vrooman, F.R.G.S. The book is based on a lecture recently delivered to the School of Geography at Oxford. Mr. Vrooman considers that Mr. Roosevelt has precipitated the world issue of the twentieth century, and that a new era in world politics and a new day for rational, ethical and constructive democracy dawned the day he was sworn in as President of the United States.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY publish this week a novel entitled "Mrs. Gramercy-Park," by A. R. Goring Thomas, dealing with the lust for money among certain circles in English society; "Diana Dethroned," by W. M. Letts, a novel that will appeal to the lover of nature, the fields and flowers and flashing streams; also, "The English House," by W. Shaw Sparrow, who describes for the lay reader, in untechnical language, the evolution of the English house through the centuries, dealing with the human side of the house as well as with its history and architecture.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have just ready the authorized translation, by Harry W. Morse, of Harvard University, of Wilhelm Ostwald's "Fundamental Principles of Chemistry." They will bring out shortly a volume entitled "The Gilds of China," by Hosea Ballou Morse, the author of a recently published work on "The Trade and Administration of the Chinese Empire." In his forthcoming book, which is fully illustrated, is given an account of the Gild Merchant, or Co-hong, of Canton, together with a description of the workings of the Chinese gild system.

M. LOYS DELTEIL, Rue des Beaux-Arts, Paris, will publish in December a work entitled "Jean Baptiste Isabey: Sa Vie; Son Temps, 1757-1855," by Mme. de Basily-Callimaki. The painter Isabey studied under David and was first miniature painter to Napoleon I. The volume will be 26 x 34 in size, and will contain about 450 pages printed on hand-made paper specially manufactured, with the watermark Isabey. The illustrations will include three heliographs in color and about 250 reproductions of his work, portraits and documents of all kinds. About 500 numbered copies will be printed with the paging in Arabic numbers, and 50 copies on Japan paper with the paging in Roman numbers. The price of the work will be 300 fr. on the hand-made paper and 500 fr. on the Japan paper.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD's novels have been classified by Clement Shorter as belonging to three decades. To the first period belong the Elsmere story and two or three which followed it. In the second decade Mrs. Ward has presented actual life with altered circumstances. "Lady Rose's Daughter" is a clever rewriting of the story of the Marquise du Deffand and Mlle. Lespinasse. "The Marriage of William Ashe" is a retelling of the affairs of Lord Melbourne and Lady Caroline Lamb, while "Fenwick's Career" is a paraphrase of the career of Romney. With "Marriage à la Mode" Mrs. Ward makes her third departure and devotes herself to the divorce question. "The thing which strikes me strongly," says Mr. Shorter, "is the characteristic hatred of her sex which women novelists of the secondary rank always display and which was particularly observable in the work of George Eliot."

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY, Akron, O., will bring out at once an attractive book for children by Dr. James Ball Naylor, entitled "Dicky Delightful of Rainbow Land." Dr. Naylor, a novelist of no small reputation, has devoted his energies for the last two or three years to juveniles, and each story shows far greater care bestowed upon it than the average author thinks necessary for a child's tale. It may be that this is the reason for the readability of his stories, for certain it is that it would be difficult indeed to find more intensely interesting books than this. Dicky is truly a delightful youngster, who has a generous share of adventures. His real name is Richard D. Lightner, but an uncle first called him Dicky and then facetiously played upon the name, converting Dicky D. Lightner into Dicky Delightful. The book will be issued in handsome dress—many text illustrations, six full-page drawings in colors, cover in color, etc.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish at once a novel entitled "The Patience of John Morland," by Mary Dillon, author of "Rose of Old St. Louis," etc. The story is one which involves various personages in the administration of President Jackson, and incidentally depicts that period of American history. There are four illustrations in color by Charles M. Relyea. At the same time will be published an additional volume in the Kipling Pocket edition, "From Sea to Sea;" also, "House Plants," by Parker Thayer, described as "a manual of the best plants for house cultivation and indoor decoration, giving foliage and flowers all summer and winter; their raising from seed and home propagation, etc. They have in preparation a romance which has for its subject Hendrik Hudson and his discoveries in America. The book is by Ford Madox Hueffer, author of "English and the English," etc., and is entitled "The Half Moon." The earlier scenes of Mr. Hueffer's story are laid in the ancient town of Rye, England. The personality of Hudson, his ambitions as an explorer, and the New World adventures which lent a romantic interest to his entire career naturally form the main theme of the book, which is calculated to have an additional timely interest in view of the approaching Hudson tercentenary celebration.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY will publish shortly a memorial volume of the lectures, papers and letters of the late Professor Charles Edward Garman, of Amherst College, prepared with the co-operation of the class of 1884, by Eliza Miner Garman, with an introduction by James H. Tufts; a special edition of a careful and interesting account of the great Boston fire of 1872, compiled from many sources, entitled "Letters Written by a Gentleman in Boston to his Friend in Paris, describing the Great Fire, with introductory Chapters by Harold Murdock, with a number of contemporary illustrations; "A Student's History of American Literature," by Professor William E. Simonds, of Knox College, with bibliographies, chronological table and appropriate illustrations; "Social Development and Education," by Professor M. V. O'Shea, of the University of Wisconsin, which should make a strong appeal to all who are interested in theoretical questions pertaining to human nature, and especially to those who are charged with care and culture of childhood and youth in the home, in the school and elsewhere; also, the following three volumes in the Riverside Educational Monographs: "Education for Efficiency and the New Definition of the Cultivated Man," by Charles W. Eliot; "Self-Cultivation in English," by Professor George H. Palmer, of Harvard, and "The Moral Principles in Education," by Professor John Dewey, of Columbia, who in this volume treats in a most authoritative way of the question of character forming in the schools and in the home, and shows how ineffectively the average school of to-day is meeting its responsibility for the moral training of children.

LEMCKE & BUECHNER, 30 W. Twenty-seventh Street, New York, have made arrangements with Dietrich Reimer, of Berlin, to bring out in this country a history of the Germans in the United States by Rudolf Cronau, of New York City, entitled "Drei Jahrhunderte deutschen Lebens in Amerika." The work will be in one volume of about 560 pages and will be adequately illustrated. They have also made arrangements to bring out in this country an edition—the Propyläen Ausgabe—of Goethe's complete works in forty volumes, of about 500 pages each, seven volumes to be brought out each year. Three supplementary volumes will contain a Goethe Iconography as follows: Vol. I., Goethe and his works in contemporary illustration, including all available pictures of Goethe, silhouettes, medals, etc., Chodowiecki's Duncker's and other illustrators' plates, (about 120,) to be ready Christmas, 1909. Vol. II., Goethe's family, friends and abodes, about 250 illustrations. Vol. III., Documents, facsimile reproductions of his mss., about 100 plates. Not only all that Goethe himself meant to be printed will be reproduced in this edition, but also a representative selection from his letters and diaries, without a pedantic striving for completeness. The text, based on the Weimar edition, will be edited by competent Goethe scholars, in chronological order, as far as feasible, visualizing the development of his genius, and assisting in the enjoyment of studying him—in short, a really representative, splendid edition is contemplated, satisfying the most fastidious booklover and Goethe-lover.

G. W. DILLINGHAM, New York, will bring out shortly in book form Miss Olga Nether-sole's famous play, "The Writing on the Wall," changed into a strong novel by Edward Marshall. The book will be an even stronger exposition of New York City's tenement-house evils than the famous and delightful artist's play was. It will deal especially with the much-discussed landlordism of the New York Trinity Church corporation. They announce a volume entitled "True Detective Stories," by A. L. Drummond, former chief of the United States Secret Service. The volume contains seventeen stories ranging from the days immediately following the Civil War to Broadway as it is to-day. The biggest, brainiest criminals of almost half a century—both men and women—pass in review before the reader as this grizzled ex-chief of the United States Service tells his tales. They will publish next month "Redcloud of the Lakes," a novel by Frederick R. Burton, author of "Strongheart." As its name suggests, the book deals with Indians. It is said to be a presentation of Indian life and character drawn entirely from the author's personal knowledge of the Ojibways, among whom he lived for years and by whom he was adopted. The hero, like other personages in the story, was one of the author's "brothers," a handsome man who in a way is well known in cities east of the Mississippi, for he was always a conspicuous member of the Indian company that travelled with Mr. Burton on his lecture tours. He is generally known as "Joe," his Indian name being too long to remember. It was his individual solution of the Individual solution of the Indian problem that suggested the story.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS, Urbana, Ill., has just published as vol. III, no. 3, of its University Studies, an interesting study entitled "The History of Cumulative Voting and Minority Representation in Illinois, 1870-1908," by Blaine F. Moore. The study embodies the results of an inquiry into the actual workings of the cumulative voting system for choosing representatives in the state legislature and a discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of the system as they have been brought to light by nearly forty years' experience. The author shows that in but three instances during the forty years has the system failed to give the minority party in each district at least one representative, and that with three exceptions also third parties, such as prohibitionists or socialists, have been able to choose from two to five members in each legislature. Sometimes, however, owing to circumstances fully explained by Mr. Moore, the minority party succeeds in electing two of the three representatives chosen from each district, leaving the majority party but one. This has happened twenty-four times in all since 1870. One objection raised to the system is that since its successful working requires party control and supervision in determining the number of candidates to be nominated by the two dominant parties in each district, political "machines" are necessarily maintained and strengthened. The proposition made by certain reformers that each party should be required by law to nominate three candidates in each district so as to give the voters a wider range of choice, is shown by Mr. Moore to be impracticable, since it would result in giving the majority party all three of the members from the district. The present system, with remarkably few exceptions, secures what it was intended to secure, namely, representation of the principal minority party in each legislative district. Whether it should be retained is therefore a question mainly of the merits of minority representation as a principle of government.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have brought out this week James Lane Allen's new book, "The Bride of the Mistletoe," the first of his books to be published in six years. As with the rest of Mr. Allen's work, the scene of the novel is laid in Kentucky. Christmas, the secret, deep significance of its many rites and customs, reaching far back into the shadows of antiquity, the silent message of the woods, all exert their mystic influence upon a man and woman, as the two approach and live through the crisis of their lives. The capacity of human nature for joy and for sorrow is revealed in this book, but also, under the spell of Mr. Allen's art, the subtle, intangible forces of the universe emerge from their obscurity and appear for a brief space before our unaccustomed eyes. But this is only the framework of the picture, the setting which throws into relief Mr. Allen's conception of a love from which the soul has fled, of a union undermined by the wear of life. They have also just ready an interesting study in Revolutionary history which they are bringing out for the Columbia University Press, in "The Transition in Illinois from British to American Government," by Dr. Robert Livingston Schuyler, who has treated of the events which resulted in the abandonment by Great Britain of the territory which has since been developed into the Great Middle West. What would have happened had England retained her grip upon it is an interesting subject for speculation; why and how she did not is the subject of this attractive book. In "How to Identify the Stars," also just ready, Professor Willis I. Milham has provided exactly the information which amateur astronomers wish to find at hand. With the aid of the charts and plans at the back of the book, the identification of the constellations becomes a simple undertaking, and in the text is to be found much compact information.

A CONSOLIDATION

The Book Departments of the McGraw Publishing Company and the Hill Publishing Company have been consolidated.

This means a big publishing and jobbing house, devoted exclusively to technical books. The combined lists aggregate upwards of 250 titles covering all branches of engineering.

Publishing

The publishing will be limited to engineering and technical books for the industrial and college fields. The highest standards in text and manufacture will be maintained.

Jobbing and Importing

A general jobbing and importing business will be carried on as well. A large and well assorted stock, a full line of importations, and a well developed machinery for the collection of out-of-the-way titles are guarantees to the trade of

IMPORTANT BOOKS

THE WARS OF RELIGION IN FRANCE: The Huguenots, Catherine de Medici, and Philip the Second, 1559-76

By JAMES WESTFALL THOMPSON

The volume, representing nearly seven years of study, including two prolonged visits to France, is based upon a careful examination of original sources, and contains a valuable appendix of hitherto unpublished documents from the archives of Paris and London. It treats of the epoch of the Reformation, but does not attempt to deal with the religious conflict except in so far as it influenced the political, diplomatic and economic activities of the period. Our whole interpretation of the sixteenth century, of course, has been profoundly changed by the recent progress in economics; and in the matter of industrial history and of the retroactive effect of wretched existing condition, as also in the development of the Holy League of France out of certain political and social forces, the book makes decidedly new and valuable contributions. 618 pages, 8vo, cloth, illustrated, net, $4.50; postpaid, $4.84.

MODERN CONSTITUTIONS

By WALTER FAIRLEIGH DODD

This collection contains the texts, in English translation, where English is not the original language, of the constitutions or fundamental laws of the Argentine nation, Australia, Austria-Hungary, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United States. These constitutions have not heretofore been available in any one English collection, and a number of them have not before appeared in English translation. Each constitution is preceded by a brief historical introduction, and is followed by a select list of the most important books dealing with the government of the country under consideration. 2 vols., 750 pages, 8vo, cloth, net, $5.00; postpaid, $5.42.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS

By C. EDWARD MERRIAM

For students of American political history and especially of American party history, this volume will be particularly valuable. It gives a clear account of the various laws and cases and a critical discussion of the present primary question. The absence of literature on this subject makes the appearance of the book especially timely. Many general readers as well as the special students will find it of interest. 300 pages, 12mo, cloth, net, $1.25; postpaid, $1.35.

Homespun A Novel

Second printing. $1.50

By LOTTIE BLAIR PARKER, author of the popular plays Way Down East and Under Southern Skies.

The same qualities which made "Way Down East" appeal to some 6,000,000, and "Under Southern Skies" to some 3,800,000 Americans are strongly evident in this genuine, old-fashioned, heart interest story of New England village life.

"The unerring human sympathy and understanding which have made 'Way Down East' one of the notable plays of the last quarter of a century are found in 'Homespun,' a simple yet dramatic narrative. A novel of great force and absorbing interest. The chief characters are masterly studies. A charmingly pure love story."—Baltimore Sun.

The Runaway Place A May Idyl of Manhattan

Second printing. $1.25

By WALTER P. EATON, ex-dramatic critic of the New York Sun, and ELISE M. UNDERHILL.

The romance of the man out of a job and the mysterious maid from Somewhere who meet in Central Park ("The Runaway Place"), where for a while they are as children who had forgotten to grow up.

"If you want a charmingly whimsical love story, something filled with the memories of youthful days, if you want pathos and tender humor and sheer beauty, something different, shy and elusive in its appeal, buy this book. Barrie would not be ashamed to father it."

—MILTON BRONNER, Literary Editor, Scripps-McRae League.

"One of the most charming little idyls. Should be strong in its appeal to many readers."—Springfield Republican.

An Appropriate Vacation Gift for Men

Fish Stories: Alleged and Experienced, with a Little History, Natural and Unnatural

By CHARLES F. HOLDER, author of "The Log of a Sea Angler," etc., and DAVID STARR JORDAN, author of "A Guide to the Study of Fishes," etc. With four colored plates and many illustrations from photographs. $1.75 net.

"It meets the average fisherman, who is a liar on his own ground, and 'beats him out of sight' with true stories which are as scientific as they are wonderful . . . also a guide-book for fishermen who are intent upon exciting sport."—The Christian Register.

"A delightful miscellany, telling about fish of the strangest kind, with scientific description melting into accounts of personal adventure. Nearly everything that is entertaining in the fish world is touched upon, and science and fishing are made very readable."—New York Sun.
